Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Tuesday 13 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Most places staying dry with sunny spells developing.

Today:
Western and central Scotland will be warm and mostly dry with sunny spells and a few afternoon showers. East starting dull with some patchy light rain, becoming dry this morning then some afternoon sunshine. Some mist lingering in Northeast.

Tonight:
Any remaining showers dying away this evening to leave a dry night with clear periods. Still some patches of haar around northeast coasts.

Wednesday:
Most places dry and warm with sunny spells. Still some haar lingering in the Northeast. Also mist and low cloud coming into the West Coast later with a little drizzle.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
High pressure will bring a dry, settled few days across Scotland with plenty of warm sunshine. However patches of mist and low cloud will affect some coastal areas at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.